On Christmas evening, the Baptist Church in Cynthiana, was badly damaged by fire. The fire started from overhead pipes in the basement. The arrangements for a Christmas entertainment had just been completed, all decorations, including the tree, were so demolished by water that hundreds of children and members were disappointed.

The Methodist church of Mt. Olivet, was the scene of most exciting times during a revival just closed. During the week eight people were strangely stricken in the church, some laid low, hours in a cataleptic state. The revival was held by the Rev. Polli, the regular pastor of the church, and it was largely attended. The excitement became intense when on the first night a young lady suddenly fell and remained apparently unconscious for some time. During the entire revival six ladies and two men fell under the strong influence including the pastor. Some lay with open staring eyes, while others laid with closed eyes. All those stricken lay until the same mysterious power that had stilled them temporarily. No one can account for the strange occurrences.

To the Voters of Bourbon County.

I desire to say, that I have been teaching in the county for eight years. I began teaching when seventeen years of age and have used my salary in educating myself. Being now thrown entirely upon my own resources, the salary of a county school is not sufficient to support me and I have announced as a candidate for Superintendent of County Schools. Your influence and support will be gratefully appreciated. I am teaching now and it will be impossible for me to canvass the county before Spring; however I will try to see every voter at some proper time. Thanking you for anything you will do for me,

I am, very respectfully,
NELLIE B. BEDFORD.

THE FARM AND TURF.

News For the Farmer, Trader and Stock Raiser.

At a sale in Montgomery county last week fodder sold at 23 cents per shock.

In Montgomery, John C. Trimble sold to Sid Hart, a pair of 2-year-old mules for $275 cash.

A 15,000 pound crop of tobacco in Fayette sold last week at 8 cents per pound. It was heralded as a remarkable sale, but the great bulk of the crop is getting offers of only 4 to 6 cents. We think it advisable for every farmer who can to hold his crop.

Comparative Longevity.

It has often been remarked that while nothing is so uncertain as the duration of any given human life nothing is more certain than the aggregate of years which may be assigned to a group of 100 persons or more at any particular age. The expectation of life at a given age, to use the actuarial phrase, differs considerably, as might be expected, in different countries, and Englishmen may be surprised to learn that they are not the longest living among the white races.

At the age of 20 an Englishman in average health may expect to live 42 years, and any life office will grant him a policy based on that probability. The American's expectation is for a slightly longer period. On the other hand, a German lad of 20 can count upon little more than 39 years and a half.

It would seem, therefore, that the restlessness attributed to the American temperament does not necessarily conduce to the shortening of life nor the composure of the German to its prolongation. Possibly the better feeding and clothing of Americans in the lower classes of the population are the principal causes of their greater longevity. Their position is, at any rate, maintained in later as well as in earlier years.

The American who has reached 60 may look to complete 14 years more, while the Britisher's expectation is only about 13 years and 10 months and the German's as nearly as possible 12 months less. Both at 20 and at 60 the Frenchman's prospect is a little better than the German's and a little worse than the Englishman's.—London Globe.

Economical Training of Gunners.

The method used in the United States navy for the economical training of the gunners is very interesting. It is a well known fact that the cost of firing one of the large guns used in the navy is very great, amounting sometimes to $1,000 or more. To save this expense a very simple method is employed. In the case of the large guns an ordinary Remington rifle is secured in the breech of the gun and directly in the center of the bore, so that when it is fired its bullet takes the same direction as that of the regular projectile. The large gun is sighted in the usual manner. On account of the lesser velocity of the small bullet the target is placed close to the ship and is made correspondingly small.

The method used for the 6 pounder or other small guns is slightly different, as instead of the small rifle a wooden or dummy cartridge the same size as the regular cartridge is employed. Through the center of this wooden cartridge runs a rifle barrel which is loaded with a .44 caliber cartridge. This latter method has the additional advantage of giving the gun crew practice in loading as well as firing.—Washington Star.

In Bath, J. Van Arsdall sold his crop of tobacco to Contintal Tobacco Co., for 7c all round.
